Automobile Enters Politics
Some Real Superstition
To Establish Safe Flying
Looking from the Sky

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE
The automobile industry finds itself in a peculiar position. Mr. Raskob, finance minister of the four-billion-dollar General Motors, is a member of the Democratic National Convention. Henry Ford is vice president of the engineers' committee organization. The automobile is the most important factor in the nation's life.

PROF. NICHOLAS ROERICH, traveler, explorer, discoverer, with a reputation for much superstition, was expected in a miserable country, surrounded by mountains, and with a population of thousands of natives, to establish a safe flying.

BIBLIA says you must not kill animals. Animals not wanted, are given the edge of a hill, forced to fall over and kill themselves. The bodies are left in open fields, to be eaten by birds in open fields. The bodies are left in open fields, to be eaten by birds in open fields.

THE first prize will go to the plane carrying the greatest payload, in the shortest time. This national air tour, emphasizing safety and efficiency, is a most constructive aviation enterprise.

THE venerable Cardinal Lucon of Birmingham, 84 years old, flew over his cathedral and told friends how beautiful the whole building looked from the air.

WHAT do our spirits see, leaving our bodies? Do they look down on sleeping cities at night, busy farms by day? Do they see other planets and worlds? Do they see other planets and worlds? Do they see other planets and worlds?

TURKISH Mohammedanism talks of "renewing its Sabbath from Friday to Sunday, for business reasons, and with music in mosques." The latter idea would promote peace in India, where Mohammedans often kill Hindus marching past mosques with music playing.

TOLEDO SLAYER FOUND SANE BY THREE JUDGES

Death To Be Executed from Murderer of Little Girl
Oct. 26
VERDICT UNANIMOUS
Hoppe Stands Rigid and Wild-Eyed as Sentence Is Pronounced

Toledo, July 16—Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, self-confessed slayer of 7-year-old Dorothy Sidelowski and Lily Dale Croft, is sane and must expiate his crimes in the electric chair Oct. 26. It was decided here today by a tribunal composed of Common Pleas Judges Milroy, Martin and Austin.

The verdict came as a crushing blow to the defense which had introduced witnesses and psychiatrists in an effort to establish their contention that the alleged "Toledo slizzer" was insane and should be confined to an institution where he would not be a menace to society.

Sentence of death was pronounced on the doomed man immediately after the verdict was announced. Judge Charles M. Milroy, who presided at his trial, sentenced Hoppe to die in the electric chair at Columbus on Friday, Oct. 26.

Rigid and Wild-Eyed
Hoppe stood rigid and wild-eyed as sentence was pronounced. His first move after hearing his doom was to lunge toward a drinking fountain, dragging a deputy sheriff, to whom he was handcuffed, with him.

When asked by reporters, as he was being led away, if he had anything to say, Hoppe answered: "Nothing doing, you newspaper men will have to pay me to talk. I have a bid to support and I'll talk for money if you will come over to the jail."

The decision that Hoppe was sane and must be executed was made by Common Pleas Judges Charles M. Milroy, James Austin, Jr., and James S. Martin, sitting as a sanity tribunal. Their decision was unanimous.

RUSSIAN SHIP RESCUES NINE MEN FROM ICE

Three Italians and Norwegian Taken Off Relief Boat
Moscow, July 16—The Russian icebreaker Krassin has rescued nine men from the ice in the Arctic. The Soviet relief committee announced this afternoon.

In addition to the Chuchkovsky group, the Krassin picked up Noyev, a Norwegian, and three Italians from the relief ship Braganza. The Braganza has been in the Arctic since the first of June trying to locate and save missing members of the Noble expedition.

All the seven men aboard, previously rescued, the five of Vigliotti group are in the best of physical condition. They had plenty of food in their encampment and were in high spirits. The Krassin, Lieutenant Vigliotti, their leader, stated that they had hardly begun to consume the food dropped by airplanes, when they were rescued.

Captain Marchion, who with Captain Zappi, was rescued from a perilous and exposed position on an ice-field, is in the worst condition of all seven. However, he is improving and is now able to talk coherently.

GREAT NATIONS TAKE STEPS TO OUTLAW WARS

France and Italy Accept Secretary Kellogg's Proposal for Treaty
PLAN CONFERENCE
State Department Head Likely To Lead Delegation To Paris

Washington, July 16—The great nations of the world are ready today, for the first time in history, to take a concerted step toward the universal outlawing of war.

France and Italy, in notes made public by the state department, accept Secretary Kellogg's modified proposal of June 23 for a general treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy.

Germany has already accepted Great Britain's favorable answer is expected this week. Japan has accepted Kellogg's original proposal on April 13.

With all powers in agreement upon the general terms of the projected treaty, attention of statesmen is turned to plans for a gathering of foreign ministers at Paris next October for the actual conclusion and signing of the historic covenant.

Secretary Kellogg will head the American delegation to this gathering. The project is now before the chief executive at the White House. Kellogg's appearance in Paris is expected as soon as formal approval of the gathering is received from the principal European capitals.

Under the terms of Kellogg's original proposal, the first treaty is to be open to all other nations which may elect to adhere.

BOY STRUCK BY AUTO SUFFERS BRAIN INJURY

Concussion and Fractured Arm Sustained by Loren Tibbals. Aged 5
NOW IN HOSPITAL
Accident on S. Main st. Most Serious of Several Reported Here

Loren Tibbals, five-year-old son of Mrs. A. W. Tibbals, North Main st., is in serious condition at City hospital today, suffering from concussion of the brain and a fractured left arm, sustained when he was hit by a Ford truck while crossing the street in front of the Starline Telephone Co. building, South Main st., late Saturday afternoon.

The boy, who is a newspaper seller for the Marion Star, was attempting to reach the east side of the street to make a sale when the accident occurred. Witnesses say he ran from the west side of the street and failed to see the truck owned by the Big Three Hop & Malt Co., and driven by Wilbur Wilford, East Church st., which was going north on Main st.

Taken to Hospital
The boy was hit by the front end of the car and one of the front wheels passed over his left arm. He was removed to City hospital by a passing motorist. Although still serious, his condition was reported to be better today.

Howard Mahaffey, 200 South Grand st., was expected to be released from City hospital late today after undergoing treatment for cuts and bruises he sustained in an auto collision at West Columbia st. and Park blvd., at 8 o'clock, Sunday morning. Terms of this city, a passenger in Mahaffey's car, escaped uninjured.

Mrs. C. A. Jones, Bellefontaine av., sustained a torn ligament in her left arm when the Chandler sedan in which she was riding collided with a Ford touring car owned by H. Horton of this city on Kenton pk. last night.

ABANDONS STAGE

Helen Gahagan, comedienne by critics to be one of the greatest actresses on the American stage, has announced that she will give up the drama in order to study opera under a Chicago maestro. She last appeared with John Drew in an all-star revival of "Treasure of the Webb."

After forcing open the skylight, the burglars made their way to the floor by climbing down the shelving. Spaces where the bottles and packages had been pushed back showed where they had placed their hands and feet in the descent.

They made their escape from the store in the same manner. How they reached the skylight from the roof 12 feet above is more of a mystery, as no trace of a ladder could be found by the police.

A rope ladder or a single rope could have been used, however, and in all probability this explains their means of reaching the skylight, police say.

That the robbery was committed by some one familiar with the store, is the belief of the police.

Oakland News Entered
Burglars also visited the Oakland Drug Store over the weekend, according to a report made to the police. Nothing was taken, however, and an overturned table beneath the window through which entrance was effected led the police to believe the burglars were frightened away by the noise. A window had been forced open in the drug store at the rear of the store.

ENTRANCE IS MADE THROUGH ROOF OPENING

Robbers Descend Through Skylight into Kennedy Pharmacy
RANSACK PREMISES
Oakland Drug Store and Coal Firm's Office Also Entered. Police Report

Forcing open a skylight at the bottom of the 12-foot air shaft, burglars early this morning entered and ransacked the Kennedy pharmacy at 122 West Center st. and made their escape with $555.29 in cash. A $2 bill and a number of checks were left by the intruders.

The robbery was discovered by Richard Kennedy, son of the proprietor, when he opened the store this morning. Burglars had been ransacked and the contents of the space beneath the shelves, strewn about the floor by the burglars in their search for the money. As far as could be determined this morning, nothing but the money was taken.

SEES SMITH AS STRONG CANDIDATE

Admires Nominee for "Honesty of Convictions," Fletcher Says

That Governor Al Smith of New York will prove a formidable candidate in this year's presidential campaign is the opinion expressed by Congressman Brooks Fletcher of Marion in a statement sent out from Washington. Fletcher is not worried over Smith's advocacy of prohibition modification, according to the statement, which is as follows:

"I admire Governor Smith. He has honest convictions and does not hesitate to express them. There is no pussy-footing, nor any attempt at deception. One need not, necessarily, agree with him on everything, but one can admire courage and a desire to avoid straddling. In this respect he makes the Democrats an energetic, vigorous candidate who will give the Republicans the hardest battle they have had since Woodrow Wilson."

Local Pastor Names Church As Agency to End Spread of Lawlessness in Nation

Spirit of Christ in Hearts of Citizens Only Solution to Problem, the Rev. M. F. Weckmueller Declares in Sermon at Union Services

The part of the church in law enforcement was related by the Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, pastor of the First Reformed church at the union church services held at Trinity Baptist church, last night.

The Rev. Mr. Weckmueller took for his subject "The Righteousness That Exceeds" and took his reference from Matt. 5:10. "Whoever, therefore, shall break one of these least commandments and also teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom."

"We are living in a day of lawlessness," Rev. Mr. Weckmueller stated. "It is useless for me to prove the fact, inasmuch as crime of the highest type down to the petty form is reported daily."

Maze of Laws

"To remedy this situation, more laws are passed continually until the average citizen is lost in the maze of them. The citizen does not know, he cannot know all of them. It takes a person who gives his entire life to the study of these laws to really master them."

"When the citizen is told by the court that ignorance of the law is no excuse, he has no alternative; he must accept the penalty of the court. In spite of the fact that he knows nothing of the requirements of the law, he merely tries to fill his heart with the spirit of the law and trusts to God that he will live up to the letter of the law."

"And the church, I am fully convinced in my own mind, are the only solution to our present lawlessness. The spirit of Jesus Christ in the hearts of the citizens is the one remedy to end lawlessness in our country today."

In Charge of Service

H. F. Fuleford, deacon of Trinity Baptist church, presided at the union services. Rev. E. H. Hildebrand, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, read the scriptures and gave the benediction. Rev. Karl W. Furo, pastor of Protestant Street M. E. church, offered prayer.

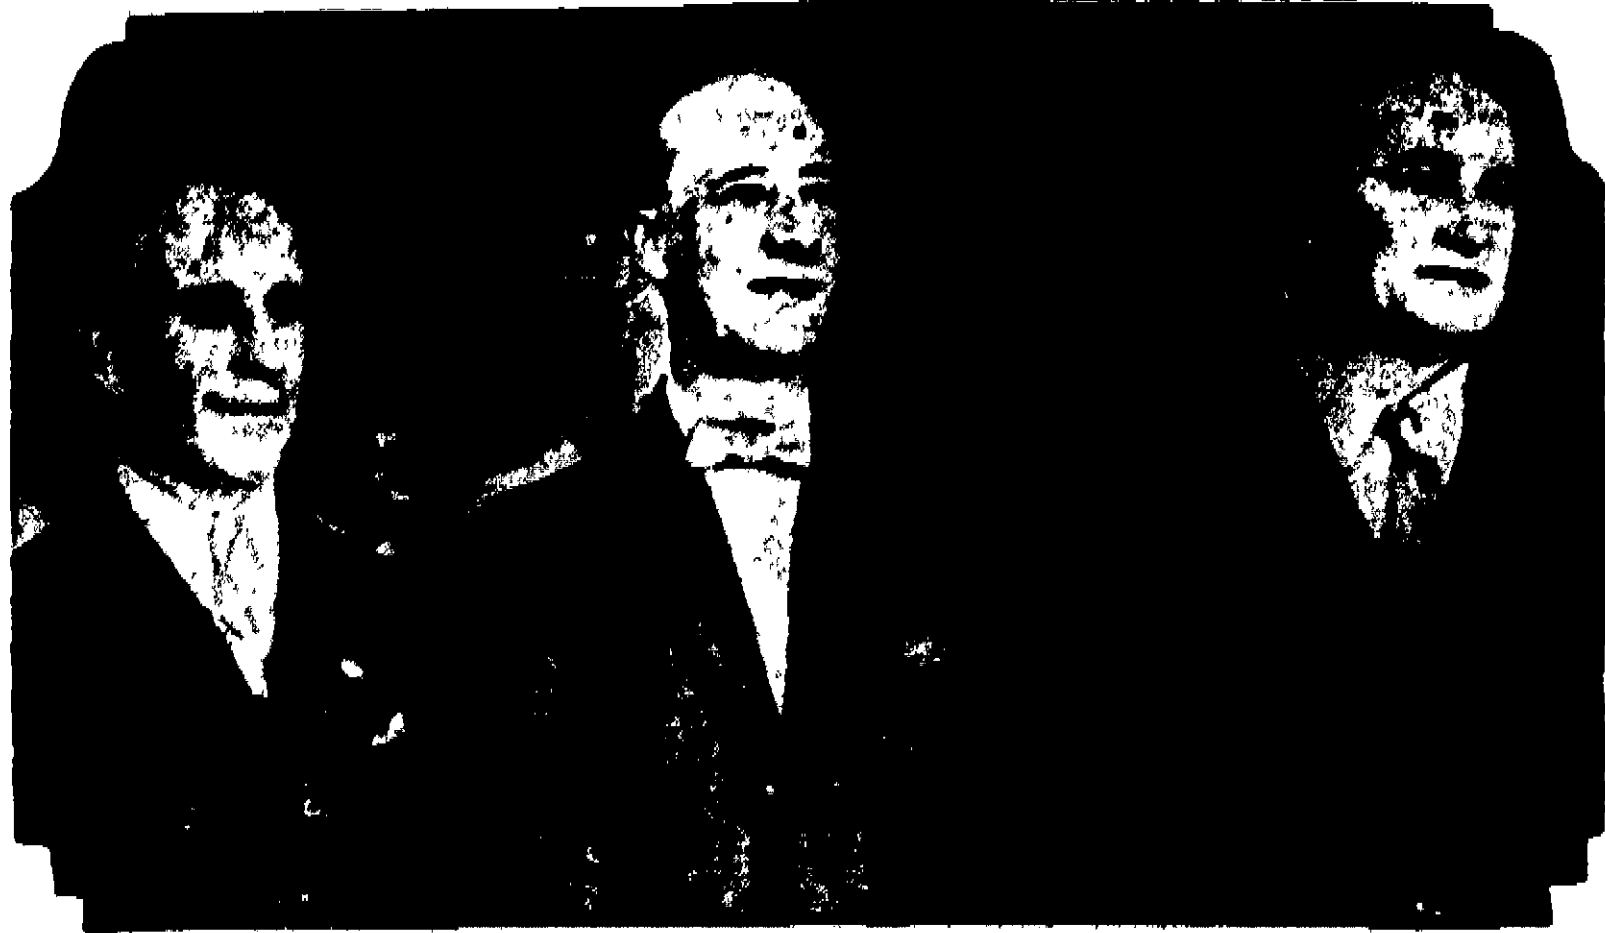

"Hold Thou Me, Hand" was the title of a diet sung by Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Shadlock as part of the musical program. Mrs. B. L. Wallace presented a song, "Beside Still Water." Miss Grace Dunfee, organist at Trinity Baptist church, played three organ numbers.

Young people of First Presbyterian church were in charge of the music at the young people's meeting which preceded the union service at the church. Central Christian church young people were in charge of the worship and young people of Trinity Baptist church were in charge of the lesson study.

HOCKING VALLEY TO LAY NEW TRACKAGE

Yards at Walbridge Will Cost $2,000,000; Purchase Land

Toledo, July 16 — New yards and trackage costing in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 will begin soon in the Hocking Valley railroad. The new yard will include repair track and several new concrete buildings. Additional trackage, extending about 25 miles to the south through Bowling Green, is contemplated, company officials said. It is planned to lay approximately 20 tracks. Another stretch of track will be laid from Loggley, north of Fostoria, to Walbridge, a distance of 18 miles. It is to be double tracked, and work is expected to be completed by Oct. 1.

The Hocking Valley announced that it had purchased 80 acres of land to the south of its present terminals at Walbridge, about four miles from Toledo, and would begin improvements as soon as contracts could be let. The new yard will include repair track and several new concrete buildings. Additional trackage, extending about 25 miles to the south through Bowling Green, is contemplated, company officials said. It is planned to lay approximately 20 tracks. Another stretch of track will be laid from Loggley, north of Fostoria, to Walbridge, a distance of 18 miles. It is to be double tracked, and work is expected to be completed by Oct. 1.

DRILL FOR WATER, STRIKE GAS FLOW

Pressure Halts Operations on Speidel Farm Near Denmark

While drilling for water on the J. J. Speidel farm, near Denmark, a strong flow of gas was encountered halting operations. Gas was reached when the hole reached a depth of 207 feet. Gas pressure was recorded at 32 pounds a short time after the well came in. Several attempts have been made to secure water on the Speidel farm and all have resulted in failure. The one in which gas was found was drilled quite a bit deeper than the others.

HEROISM AND UNSELFISHNESS OF MALMGREN IS REVEALED IN STORIES OF HIS COMPANIONS

Hopelessly Injured Explorer Implored Men To Continue Onward

WANTED GRAVE IN ICE

Krassin's Signals Never To Be Forgotten, Zappi Says in Interview

Moscow, July 10.—Hopelessly injured and facing certain death, Dr. Finn Malmgren, the Swedish explorer and scientist, implored his two companions, Captains Mariano and Zappi, to dig a grave for him in the ice and continue onward without being hampered by him.

This tale of unrivaled heroism and unselfishness was revealed in interviews given by his two companions, now safe aboard the Soviet ice-breaker Krassin. The interviews were sent by radio to the Tass, the Soviet news agency, by Professor Nemesovitch, head of the rescue expedition.

"Despite his great heart, his strength had waned and his vitality had been drained by his injuries," said Mariano of Malmgren.

Planes Pass Above
"He implored us to dig a grave for him in the ice and continue onward. He argued with us as vehemently as his condition would permit. He insisted that we go ahead because we might find safety alone, while if we stayed on with him, we would all perish."

Finally we gave in and continued our trek. Malmgren waved to us as long as we were in sight. Five different planes passed us in the distance without sighting us.

"When Chuchinsky flew right above us without landing we almost gave up all hope. We little thought a ship could break through that ice. Then, like a voice from heaven, we heard the Krassin's signal."

Mad With Joy
"I'll never forget that sound. We were mad with joy," Zappi told substantially the same story as Mariano.

The Soviet agency also received by radio an account of the controversy among the members of the Noble party which preceded the trek across the ice by Malmgren and his companions, as recorded by Professor Holmbeck, one of the Vaclav group who was saved by the Krassin.

Following the crash of the Italia's gondola on the morning of May 25, Holmbeck and Noble was in favor of the physically able members of the party leaving the injured Malmgren and Cecconi behind in a shelter built from the wreckage of the Gondola, and starting out across the ice. Cecconi was the mechanic whose leg was broken in the crash.

Malmgren Volunteers
Noble's suggestion was outvoted by the others. Some one suggested that the three fittest of the group, Zappi, Mariano and Biagi, the radio operator, seek aid alone while the others remained behind with the injured.

Despite the fact that he was seriously injured, Holmbeck said, Malmgren heroically volunteered to replace Biagi as one of the three. He argued that Biagi could render greater assistance to the gondola group by remaining behind because of his knowledge of radio, while Dr. Malmgren, was better fitted to lead the expedition across the ice, because of his knowledge of Arctic conditions.

There was great opposition to Malmgren's venture across the ice because of his condition. Holmbeck said, but finally he was given his way and left with his two companions.

THOUGHT OF MOTHER

Dispatch Says He Gave Compass To His Companion

London, July 10.—Prof. Finn Malmgren's last thoughts were of his mother when he was left upon the ice at Brock island by Alfredo Mariano and Filippo Zappi, according to an Oslo dispatch to the Daily Mail today. This message said that Malmgren asked Mariano and Zappi to dig a grave for him in the ice and to leave him, taking all the food with them.

Malmgren gave Zappi his pocket compass with instructions it be turned over to his mother as his "last gift" if Mariano and Zappi succeeded in reaching safety. Mariano and Zappi then continued their march but later the wind and current bore the two back near the spot where Malmgren had been left and they perceived that Malmgren was still alive. Soon afterward they were again out of sight of their unfortunate comrade.

We Now Offer 100% Alemite Service

Read what it means to you and your car

A MAN walked into a restaurant and on the wall he noticed two signs.

One read, "Coffee 3 cents." The other, "Coffee 5 cents—BUT COFFEE."

Now that's the way with lubrication service for your car. There may be a slight difference in the cost, but a great deal of difference in the lubricants used and the method of using them.

Our station is a 100% Alemite Service Station. That means, first, that only genuine Alemite Lubricants are used. Lubricants that are made to defeat friction and not to meet a price.

Second, it means briefly, thorough lubrication of all chassis bearings, lubrication of gears and spraying of springs. And this is done with special Alemite equipment which forces the lubricants to vital points under many hundreds of pounds of pressure.

We want every motorist to try this service. You'll notice at once an improvement in the way your car runs. And, of more importance, you will notice an appreciable reduction in repair expenses.

CARRANZA'S BODY TO BE TAKEN WEDNESDAY

10,000 Troops Will Line Route in New York; Planes To Circle Overhead

New York, July 16—Capt. Emilio Carranza, who flew to the United States so bravely from Mexico, will return to his native land by rail on Wednesday, his body broken and crushed in a tragic accident—fatality which has drawn still closer together the two countries joined by his recent good will flight.

The body of the young officer, who was killed when his plane crashed Thursday night near Mount Holly, N. J., in a thunder-storm, lies in state here today, attended by a military guard of honor.

On Wednesday 10,000 troops will line the route from the funeral chapel to the railroad station, as airplanes circle slowly overhead. Col. Theodore Baldwin, Jr., corps area air officer, with three other officers and a picked detachment of 10 men, will compose the guard of honor on the train until it reaches Mexico City.

At the request of the Mexican government no religious ceremony of any kind will be performed here or anywhere enroute.

Queen Marie denies that she is planning to visit the United States and Canada. All right, Marie! It's for you to decide, but should you change your mind, for heaven's sake be a bit more careful in the selection of your traveling companions.

Grandfather Champion Defiant.

Major Anthony J. Drekel Biddle, of Philadelphia, who will be remembered by the sporting gentry as one of the ring-side judges at Toledo upon the occasion when Mr. Jacques Dempsey practically annihilated Mr. Jessica Willard, holds, among other titles, the championship of Bulgaria by virtue of his victory over Vladimir Nelson Atanassoff, the battling barber. Comes near Major Biddle with a denial of the rumor that he is about to retire. He reiterates his offer to defend the title against a Bulgarian grandfather of more than fifty years of age.

There have been no takers as yet. It seems that the breed of Bulgarian grandfathers is not what it used to be. If there are no takers, the major's debt goes for the grandfathers of Serbia and Rumania in addition. Major Biddle aspires to be amateur grandfather heavyweight champion of the Balkans. It might be a solution of the Balkan problem at that.

Young Robert La Follette has boiled the Kansas City platform and is running as a "Progressive," which, it may be said, is decidedly more honest than posing as a Republican and voting as a reactionary.

Television has been used in the Bell Telephone laboratories in New York City to show a boxing match. We assume that, when the thing is perfected, Tex Rickard will want us to give up $40 each for a ringside seat at home.

The Toronto police have made seven arrests in connection with the $125,000 mail robbery in the union station there and recovered all the securities and about $7,000, in cash, which is one-third of the money stolen. One can but admire the effective way in which the Canadian police authorities bring criminals to justice. Here they have arrested seven of the nine persons engaged in the robbery and recovered $111,000 of the loot, and they did it without the use of a brass band or a lie in the way of advance newspaper notices.

Do You Give a Thought to Future?

You work every day and things are moving along fairly well.

Your future does not trouble you. Let the future take care of itself, you argue.

If you are willing to take the hard knocks that the future will bring if you make no provision for the future, then go on your merry way.

Some time you will regret that you did not arrange some way to carry yourself over the tough spots that come to all men.

A few lives may escape obstacles, but not many. In fact, so few that the number is negligible.

You will have your critical periods and your sorrows.

Without any protection against these important, often sad, turmoils in your life, you only add to the suffering you are bound to encounter.

It is to be careful, with no troublesome thoughts of the future.

But when no guard is put up against what is bound to come, the degree of sorrow which may be yours at perhaps a near future date may cause all the happiness of the present to be forgotten.

Self-protection, to say nothing of family protection, is just plain common sense. Where is yours?

One Who Outlived His Fame.

Announcement of the death and the story of the career of George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon, former member of the United States senate, occupied a few brief paragraphs in the recent news. But had Mr. Chamberlain died a decade ago his obituary would have acquired a great deal more space.

In politics it is especially noticeable that when a man outlives his activity he shrinks in importance in almost exactly the same proportion represented by the shrinkage in notices of his passing.

It was less than a score of years ago that Mr. Chamberlain was one of the most conspicuous men in the affairs of the nation. A Mississippi who emigrated to Oregon, he was one of the first Democrats in the Far West to achieve high office and country-wide fame. First, governor, then United States senator, it was legendary in Oregon that he could not be defeated.

When Mr. Chamberlain went to the senate, and his party was in control, he became chairman of the powerful military affairs committee, and thus had a big part in the activities of this country during the World War. His importance in party councils began to diminish, however, when he openly advocated establishment of a coalition cabinet to public President Wilson as commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

Naturally, this suggestion was repugnant to Mr. Wilson in the form that Senator Chamberlain presented it—as a sort of coordinate executive branch—and its sponsors in the Democratic party were not thereafter received with any noticeable warmth at the White House.

Mayor Bill Hale Thompson, of Chicago, and his three co-defendants have fallen in their motion to have voided the $2,245,694.52 funding against them for fees paid out fraudulently. There's no use talking; patriotism of the Chicago brand is never without its complexities.

A 101-year-old Sandusky woman says that only old fogies take a pessimistic view regarding the girls of today, but despite the wisdom of years one can not help but wonder if the girls of today, should they attain her age, will be as young in health as this Sandusky woman manifestly is.

The $750,000 cargo of real liquor seized aboard the steamship, Anahita, last August, has finally been ordered destroyed by a federal court in Brooklyn, which the "personal liberty" crowd will be bound to look upon as another case of "man's inhumanity to man."

A New York City doctor, who is also something of a statistician, reports that it costs the average American family $134 a year to be ill. That price may be all right to those who have long possessed riches, but it's too high for the poor and far too cheap to appeal to those whose riches are newly-acquired.

Vacation Time.

Vacation time is here and perhaps you are making plans for a trip.

You know you should visit the "old folks" in the little home town.

But it seems such a sleepy place to spend even a part of your time.

You have decided to go quite another way.

You know your duty and you also know that what the town has to offer should not have any bearing on your visit home.

You should consider your father and mother.

They want to see you, in fact they can scarcely wait to see you.

You are still the boy or the girl to them.

You have not grown up to the point where they are not interested in you and yours.

Would you, because of personal desires, deprive them of the pleasure a visit from you would give?

Are you so selfish that you have forgotten your debt to them?

It is regrettable if you have lost the love for your parents which should guide you to them every time it is possible for you to pay them a visit.

Vagrant Verse.

THE WAUNTED APPLE TREE.

A ring of shadows circle round
The flowered apple tree
In pale purple, thinning blue,
Eluding flight;
And not a fingered wind may toss
The feathery young snow
With petals fluttering in drifts
But that the shadows know.

And when the wry, green fruit is carved
To baton every bough,
They tug the ones to fall, agreed
How many to allow.

While rusty nights, with minstrelries
Of crickets piping yare,
That seek carnation, luscious balls
Will find the shadows there.

For once a battle made this place
A desolated blotch,
So those responsible, who died,
Keep penitential watch
Upon the life that worked its way
Into the ravished soil
And never shall destruction pass
Beyond their shadow coil!

—Sonja Ruthie Novak.

THE FIRST REAL SWIM IN YEARS.

Good Water in Plenty.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

This is the time of year when every day is likely to be a hot day. Please remember that in many respects babies are not unlike grown-ups. Just as we get thirsty, so do babies get thirsty. Not for a single day should the mother forget this.

Not every time a baby cries is it because it is hungry. Just because it wails is not an indication that there is a pin sticking in it somewhere. Many a poor little baby cries and cries because the poor infant is thirsty.

I am so anxious to improve this important suggestion upon your mind that I shall enlarge upon it somewhat. You know how you feel when you are thirsty. Suppose you sit in the senate and the proceedings are dry. Your mouth gets dry too, doesn't it? You send the page for a drink of water.

The poor little baby may not know what is the matter, but if it knew what a dollar is and that you can't even buy water with it, the child would want you to run around the corner and get a bottle of water.

Many a baby has suffered untold torture from a lack of water. Next time your baby cries and you can't find any other reason for the misery, give the infant a tablespoonful of water. There will be happiness written on every feature of the charming little face.

This is the season of the year when babies need more care than they do in winter. They feel the effects of the heat and the unusual inconveniences just as adults do. In fact they are more apt to suffer than adults, because they are more sensitive.

Provide yourself with a bottle which has been boiled or thoroughly scalded. Fill this with water which has been boiled for several minutes. Stopper the bottle with sterile cotton. Then if it is placed in a cool place the water will be good for a day.

Give the baby from this bottle a little of this carefully prepared water every couple of hours between feedings. This will keep the baby happy and will help it to thrive and grow.

I have told you many times that the waste of the body can not be disposed of until the food is thrown into solution. Solid waste is difficult to handle.

Of course it is true that practically all of the baby's food is liquid and on this account the waste materials are readily carried away. But even so, the fluid part of the milk is not sufficient. A reasonable amount of pure water is necessary to permit the proper disposal of waste. When sufficient water is given, either to an adult or a baby, it aids the kidneys and the skin as well as the intestinal tract. It does much to promote health.

"Very much," answered Uncle Bill Bottletop. "And we may get it if we can persuade the ultimate consumer to stop putting pecuniary temptation in the way of bootleggers."

Editorial Opinion.

WORSER THAN THE RAINES LAW.

Commercialized vice today, according to the committee of fourteen, is a more serious social menace than in the old days of the Raines law hotel. Not the entire responsibility rests with the Volstead law. The committee's report deals in part with the dance hall, which is a phenomenon antedating prohibition. It is precisely in the twenty years since the committee of fourteen has been functioning that the dance craze has swept the world. The public hall-room is part of the response to the demand for more and worse dancing. Inevitably it was bound to supply a field of operations for the once-famous "caddy" and a general market place for prostitution. Other agencies before this have reported on conditions in the dance halls with their staffs of "doctors," from whom incidentally the committee of fourteen finds the right club and speakeasy "hot-ness" to be recruited in large measure. This phase of the problem is not essentially connected with liquor. Without prohibition we should still have to take cognizance of the promiscuity of the dance "palace" and its facilities for what a more Puritan age used to call "temptation."

When we come to conditions in the night club and speakeasy there is no room for disagreeing with the committee's findings that vice conditions are more disturbing than they were twenty years ago. This is due to the volume of vice and of the manner of its exploitation. It is the second feature that will bite in hardest on the public conscience.

The old saloon back room and the old Raines law hotel carried a brand which was a safeguard for the unsuspecting and the self-respecting. The speakeasy and the night club draw young men and women, to whom they are part of metropolitan "life." Like the pocket flash, the speakeasy is often youth's delinquent, or a display of the sporting instinct.

The night club has become a regular after-theatre feature, by many today approached in a spirit not different from the after-theatre restaurant of former times. But in the speakeasy and night club investigated by the committee of fourteen it was found that eighty-five per cent. were identified with vice traffic, and of its women habitués two-thirds were prostitutes.

Young people are thus exposed to contacts which would have been impossible in former days and from which they would shrink even today in the public dance halls. The Raines law hotels, the saloon back rooms and the dives were subject to police intervention. The speakeasy is exempt, except in the case of public disturbances. It is significant that the committee of fourteen should have been compelled to restrict its investigations because the cost of repeated visits to obtain evidence was "prohibitive." That high cost and the comparative difficulty of access to the place that draw the young people; and for that state of mind prohibition stands responsible.—New York Times.

Shortening Summer Days.

BY GARRETT F. SERVICE.
The summer is fast middle of July, and, although the warmest period of the year is probably still a few weeks ahead of us, the sun is already beginning to shorten the day, having gone down at a declination two degrees, or four times as much, as apparent diameter, since the summer solstice, which occurred on June 22. The day is now coincidentally shortened, as a glance at a sundial will show. At this time of the year the sun is popping its rays from a point which most persons would have judged to be vertically overhead. In fact, the inclination was about 16 1/2 degrees from the vertical, that is, from the zenith. But by August 1 the noon sun will pass the meridian 21 1/2 degrees south of the zenith, and then the most careless observer will clearly perceive that it is far from being directly overhead.

This process of decline in the sun's declination, accompanied by gradual shortening of the day, will go on with increasing rapidity until the autumn equinox, September 23, at which time the sun will reach and cross the equator, bringing astronomical spring to the doors of people living in the Southern hemisphere, while leaving us to face the coming winter across what we may hope will be the golden fields of autumn.

But few exact astronomers are ever aware of the accelerated descent of the sun during the middle and later weeks of summer, because the temperature of the air and earth continues to increase for weeks after the sun has fallen from its high solstitial estate, and the days have begun to shorten. This seems to some a contradiction to the statement of science that the change of the seasons is governed by the altitude of the sun, and that winter freezes because during its reign the sun is so far down in the southern sky that its low sloping rays can not effectively heat the atmosphere and the ground.

Science nevertheless is right, and she has a perfectly valid and evident explanation to give of the apparent contradiction of her law. The explanation is this: Just as it requires a certain lapse of time to bring a falliron to a high temperature when placed on a kitchen range, so the surface of the earth must lie under the sun's rays for a long time before the heat derived from them can thoroughly warm the soil and penetrate to its maximum attainable depth in the ground. The flatiron on the electric range may continue to gain heat even after the current is partly turned off, because the heat that has already been imparted to iron can not be radiated away as fast as the heated range still supplies more.

The same principle applies to the heating of the earth by the sunbeams. Even after the sun has declined far toward the equator the amount of heat received by the earth during the daylight hours is in excess of the amount radiated away at night. If it were not for the fact that the loss of heat by radiation from the earth increases with the temperature, this gain of heat would continue clear up to the autumn equinox; but in reality it continues, on the average, for only about six weeks after the summer solstice.

So we can look with equanimity upon the daily-increasing decline of the sun toward the equator during the month of July at a year, for the shortening days after the summer solstice are not likely to bring a real chill until after the sun has sunk well below the equator. A mild autumn makes many seasonal sins forgivable. —Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Helen of Troy and Paris.

BY COLETTE DOUGLASS.

The romance of "the face that launched a thousand ships" is one so familiar to us all and so more or less shrouded in mystery that it's hard to know just when Helen of Troy was born. The early years of her marriage, and that she had a lovely daughter, Hermione. However, one as lovely as Helen could not long remain the center of a picture of domestic happiness and when the young Paris arrived in Sparta, to visit Menelaus, whether it was the glamour of his entourage or the wonderful beauty of the man himself, the fact remains that they fell headlong in love with each other.

When she grew up, so great was her beauty that suitors came from near and far to win her, but her father finally decided on Menelaus, the Spartan king, as the most eligible.

We are told that Helen led a model life in the early years of her marriage, and that she had a lovely daughter, Hermione. However, one as lovely as Helen could not long remain the center of a picture of domestic happiness and when the young Paris arrived in Sparta, to visit Menelaus, whether it was the glamour of his entourage or the wonderful beauty of the man himself, the fact remains that they fell headlong in love with each other.

Paris did violate all the rules of hospitality, inasmuch as he not only robbed Menelaus' palace, but he also carried the more or less willing queen aboard his ship and sailed away.

Naturally, Menelaus resented this most flagrant violation of his hospitality, and promptly enlisted the help of all the Greek chieftains to recover his property and the return of his wife.

They invaded Troy, now thoroughly the property of the lovely Helen, and it is supposed, she with him, refused to listen to all overtures.

For nine long years the siege of Troy lasted, but during the tenth year, Hector negotiated a treaty whereby Menelaus and Paris should fight a duel, to determine the victor.

Paris was overcome in the duel, but was rescued by Aphrodite, and fell a victim to an arrow from the bow of Hercules.

In tradition tells Helen married Paris' brother, Deiphobus, whom she betrayed into the hands of Menelaus when Troy was captured.

In spite of the calamities which Helen had brought upon them, the Trojans adored Helen and suffered through nine long years rather than surrender her to her own people.

The charm of this wonderful woman must have been great, for Menelaus forgave her and took her back to Sparta where they "lived happily ever after."

Nowhere else in the world's history do we find a love story that involves such catastrophe as does that of Helen. Laid to her door is the fall of an empire, the annihilation of the flower of the manhood of a proud race and the reducing of women of birth and beauty to the state of slaves.

Built by the Lion-Hearted.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

In the sea, a few hundred yards from the walled city of Ragusa, lies a green timbered island, La Croma, sparkling like a jewel. It is the site of a church said to have been built by Richard Coeur de Lion, as a result of a vow.

The English king, so the story runs, was returning from one of his crusades when a severe storm broke. He dropped to his knees on the deck of his ship and promised the Lord to raise an edifice at the next landing place should he be saved from the path of the sea.

Today, only the ruins of this church are visible, but a chapel of the same name bears a marker interesting to the American traveler who discovers this out-of-the-way island. It bears the inscription "erected through the generosity of James Gordon Bennett."

La Croma was the favorite resort of many famous people, among them the Archduke Maximilian, afterwards emperor of Mexico, and of the American crown prince, Adolph. —Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, July 16—Diary of a hard day: Early up and cleaning my desk. Covered an uncashed check for 150 and pleased me more than any sudden windfall ever received. And so gaily about the spreading all but four dollars in an hour.

To lunch at the Park Lane and saw the wife of a friend there teletype with an elderly young man and she seemed to avoid my husband. All of which shows how the average mortal jumps to foolish conclusions. In the evening to drive and passed a fashionable Sutton place which is the gleam setting in town. So home and came Am Carter, of Ft. Worth, and Will Rogers for a play and Amos had nodded through it all seemed to tickle Will mightily. So to bed.

Nervous break-downs are proving a long literature. Willard Huntington Wright was three of the recent best-selling detective stories under the pseudonym S. S. Van Dine was spending a year in bed and two years in a valet. Two other novels with fair success during the year were obtained by those cupping from nervous ailments. Also a book of poetry, it seems many having the universal urge "to write a book" can only a time during the tedious of convalescence.

New Yorkers who like to give their ego gallop are visiting an upper East Side where, by pre-arrangement, a singer will sing one verse of which will contain a rhying of the host's name. This to unassisted guests gives the impression the gentleman quite a card.

The tenacity and courage of news photographers in New York continues a source of wonder. They are intrepid and hard-boiled young men who think nothing of risking their necks to achieve their purpose. They climb out on dangerous ledges of skyscrapers to get a shot, they defy authority and face drawn revolvers to get their pictures. There are two of them who hold records having never fallen down although many signments were considered by editors impossible to procure.

There seems to be room, however, originally among ship news photographers. We are junking up for a full-throated "Excelsior" for the one who poses a return across aboard ship with her skirts covering her knees.

The most frequently-photographed person the world during the past year was, of course, Lindbergh. And according to news photographers the most considerate. The most difficult of all New Yorkers to photograph was the late J. P. Morgan and Charles Frohman in their day, photographers were not by and few pictures of them exist, but in this age of photographic era they would have been a "clinch." Frohman and Morgan had a distaste for being photographed amounting to a phobia.

The pests of news photographers are what known in the trade as the "lens house." The type is always hovering about celebrities ready to pop to their side and take a picture. The cameras click and the news is so well known that photographers can spot them instantly a crowd.

Happy Youngsters Throng Park at Just Kids Party

By Just Kids Safety Club Editor
 The Just Kids Safety Club happy, busy day at the Just Kids Party at the gates of the park were opened to the "Three-cent day." The amusement began to operate and they're operated to capacity all day.

 It is evident that the children of Marion can save money if there's a little incentive. Some came with 27 cents, the amount needed to take in all the rides, and still others came with more. A few were there who had to be sure that they rode on only what they liked best, for fear of wasting three cents on a ride that wouldn't satisfy.

But apparently there was no amusement at the park today that didn't suit this happy-go-lucky crowd. The men in charge were unanimous in saying that the children enjoyed themselves to the limit.

Perhaps it was the idea that most of them were spending hard-earned money of their own that accounts for the unusual display of merriment at the park.

Many of the parents accompanied the children either to look after their safety, or to enjoy the fun. Most of them seemed to be enjoying the party as much as the youngsters.

There were quite a number of basket lunches packed, and it was expected that Nixon's 10-piece orchestra would play for them during the supper hour.

The warm day called a great many into the bathing pool. The park management had a corps of special life guards on duty.

CIRCUS SHOWS HERE UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Two Important Acts Missing; Soggy Ground Handicaps Performers

The John Robinson circus pulled and packed itself out of the mud on the Drake lot, Greenwood and Fairground streets, Saturday night after playing a four business days. The tent was only half filled at the night performance and women began to tear down "travellers" and "blues" before the presentation got under way.

The circus loaded on the Hocking Valley railroad at the Garden City 6k crossing and continued its trek to Columbus where it shows today and begins a week of Ohio "stunts."

The presentation of the John Robinson circus here, on Saturday night, was rather disappointing and not up to the usual Robinson standard of other seasons. Weather and other conditions may have had something to do with this.

The circus lot was soggy and by the time the evening performance was under way the rings were mudholes, forcing several acts to give up working in one of them.

A mishap that recently befell the circus when Miss Mabel Stark was clamped by tapers prevented that act from being shown here. Miss Stark still is in a hospital and in serious condition, according to circus officials. The programing Schroeder, piano, beat and also well received by the crowd, was a duo act with Captain Terrell Jagers.

Among the best features of the performance were the Original Five Wonders, comedy aerial bar performance; a "Flicker" automobile that appeared "driverless" and a crowd that entertained the crowd before the opening of the performance.

On the whole the performance seemed to lack speed and suffered from a seeming scarcity of acts—M. P.

Washes with hand carefulness

A LAUNDERING process which is too harsh for your dainty garments is also hard on coarse clothes. The coarse clothes may not show the abuse as quickly, but their life is shortened nevertheless.

The Maytag washes dainty lingerie or coarse grimy work-clothes equally well. The clothes are cleaned by the action of hot, soapy water in a satin-smooth, cast-aluminum tub. It is gentle, but thorough—even the stubborn edge-dirt of collars and cuffs is washed out without hand-rubbing. A big tubful is washed clean in 3 to 7 minutes, an average washing in an hour.

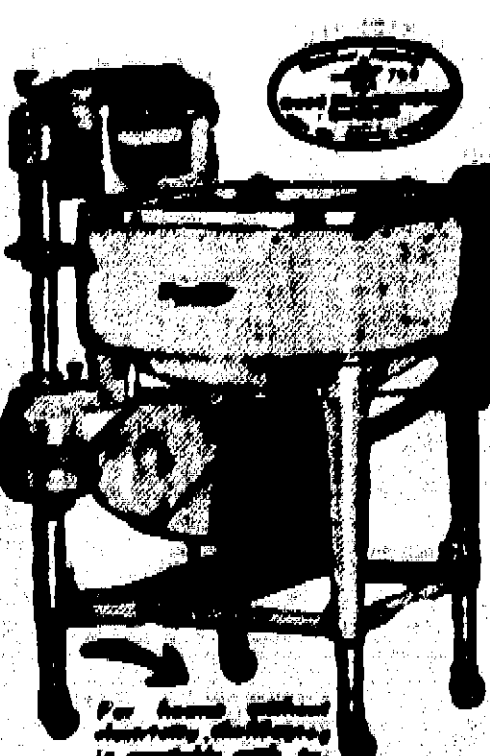

The Roller Water Remover removes both soap and water evenly from all parts of the garment. The large soft top roll working against a hard bottom roll does not harm buttons and buttons do not bite into the rolls. It has a Safety Feed, the drain-board reverses itself, and the tension adjusts itself.

The chancel was decorated with flowers. The bride wore a gown of white satin-back crepe, with trimmings of georgette, and a veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of roses, valley lilies, and baby breath.

Miss Clara Fritz, sister of the groom, attended the bride as maid-of-honor. She wore a dress of powder blue georgette with hat of tan and blue and a corsage of sweet peas. Miss Media Blankenship of Pikeville, Ky., and Miss Ruth Avey, of Lancaster, were bridesmaids. Miss Blankenship wore a frock of peach georgette and crepe with hat to match and a corsage of sweet peas. Miss Avey was in beige rose and tan georgette with hat to correspond, and wore a corsage of sweet peas. Marvin Wertenberger of Arlington, O., attended the groom as best man.

Following the wedding a two-course dinner was served at the home of the bride. Guests at the dinner included the bride party, Mrs. Fritz, Mr. and Mrs. Bryson, the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Schullinger, Mr. and Mrs. McNamara, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, Floyd and Jane McNamara, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Briggs, of St. Petersburg, Fla., Miss Princess Custer, of Columbus, Chester Rank, Rosa Fritz, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Fritz of Bucyrus, and Mrs. O. G. Briggs and daughter, Dorothy, of this city.

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

CHAPTER SIX

Steve was developing in the Rossier factory; some of the discontent among the workers was too short. At last a thing and a muttering among the workers and the factory was quickly together and the Rossier factory was forced to close.

Steve went to the factory and headed the column of Rossier employees on their march from Great View to Lull when they carried placards demanding what they called their rights. That some walked with heads down and shamed looks he didn't see. For he was in front blaring with fanatic zeal. A weakling turned tyrant.

The factory promptly closed. Wentworth Rossier with his office force went every day to the works and waited. Not impatiently or angrily, but surely. Orders piled up and not a wheel turned and there were rumors that strike-breakers were coming.

But he would not bring them. His attitude was that of a father awaiting the return of prodigal sons.

"Say's he won't have his money going out of the community," Steve growled to Agnes. "Huh! He'll bring no scabs in here, I mean tell you. Not if they know what's good for 'em."

Agnes went white. "But you'd do no violence? Not violence, Steve? Oh!—Mebey you think we oughta hand 'em round? There's a woman! Them swells a-gradin' their foot on our necks—"

But the strike got away from him. He told her one night that Pete Brent had gone back with some of his plunk. "Yella dawg! A few dollars more a week on 'Sat-day' afternoons an' he

To Clear Skin Of Pimples

Do It Quickly And At Small Cost—It's Easy This Way

Why should anyone allow pimples, blackheads and other blemishes to mar the beauty of their skin when they can be so easily gotten rid of with Peterson's Ointment?

All you have to do is to rub the Ointment thoroughly and regularly into the skin for a few days till it is soft, clear and perfect.

Emma Lillian Baker of St. Louis writes: "I was very pleased with your sample, and I advise every family to have a box in their medicine cabinet. It has cleared my skin wonderfully and I appreciate your sending me a sample. I am going to buy a large box and always have it ready for use. It sure is a wonderful salve. I wouldn't be without it."

And Edward King of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Had pimples all over my face for over a year, but Peterson's did the work." 35 cents a box at all drug stores.—Adv.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By AUDI MORTIMER LEWIS

I GOT my face massaged yesterday, it being Sunday morning. Massage means to mix anything like my mother does a pan full of dough. If my face hadn't been kind of rubbery to start with, and had stayed whichever way my aunt pushed it I bet I would have a funny face by now. But it would seem to spring back. It was still kinda stiff yesterday morning because of my looking in a tin can to see if it was loaded on the Fourth, but she didn't hurt it so very much. A fellow that is going to be a pirate or a prize fighter has got to have a tough face, and if my aunt and my face both lost I ought to be able to lick the champion just by holding out my face and letting him wear himself out on it.

When I had got washed and looked the cow out me and the bunch went to see how the apples are getting along, and we found some that are as big as marbles, and we et all we could eat, and filled our pockets with more, and pegged them at Jubilee and the other dogs on the way to Sunday school.

While I was in Sunday school I caught an apple out of my pocket into my mouth and was chewing it and the teacher asked me what I had in my pocket, and when I showed her she looked like she was going to faint, and she gave Feeble a note and said for her to take it to my mother. And Feeble chased herself and the teacher kept me there so long I couldn't catch her, and when I got home Feeble was there grinning at me, and she told me she had read the note and that was why she had waited.

The note told my mother I had been eating green apples and ought to have some castor oil. Feeble was just mean enough to want to stick around and see me have to take it. She didn't know I had poured out the oil and reached out the bottle and filled it up with syrup. She was surprised when I took a big tablespoonful of the syrup and licked the cork. Girls aren't so very polite. Not like a boy is. Girls are prettier but boys know more.

Today was Monday when I let Jubilee down, and when we had looked the cows out mother told me to mind Annabelle Lee, and we took her with us to the dam and met in a long row fishing for bullheads and sunfish with pin-brooks, and Annabelle saw me looking in my can at my shoe and she started to crawl down the dam to take a look, and the dam was too steep and she rolled in the pond. I took her home and told my mother she was wet, but my mother kept on working and said, "That's nothing," so I changed her clothes and hiked out. Women aren't so very polite either.

When I got the cows home and milked there was nothing said. I pulled Jubilee up early.

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADKIN GARRISON

Philip Veritson's Grand Manner on the Court.

LILLIAN'S affections are like a bitter tonic, unpleasant but wholesome. She utters them in earnest as rare, however, that I have learned to respect her advice with a wholehearted respect. I did not particularly care for her caustic comment that my "judgment was getting lopsided," but I accepted it with a grateful smile which was genuine, for I realized that her keen perceptions had read aright my inconsistent vacillations over the question of going to the city and resuming my work with Philip Veritson.

"I suppose you're right," I said, with the reluctance which usually accompanies a feminine acknowledgment of error.

"That's where I have you beaten," she countered. "I know that's the low down on you. But I'm always encouraged when you 'suppose.' That means you're nearly ready to acknowledge the truth."

"I'll acknowledge it now," I said, laughing. "Here and now I promise to 'live my own life' this winter even if it means old life, which you know I loathe as much as I do you."

"What normal person doesn't?" she retorted. "It's a makeshift of course, but if you know you're only going to live in one during the winter, it isn't so bad. That one where I've

A precious new feminine treatment is shirred flannel at front that ripples at each movement. Style No. 3009 is further distinguished by shirring at either front shoulder and collared scalloped V-neckline, simply a two-piece waist to be worn, sleeves skirt to be worn and skirted across front and attached to bodice, and it's finished. You'll say it's remarkable, and it is made for the 36-inch bust measure with 2 1/4 yards of 40-inch material and 1 yard of binding. Think of it! Figured chiffon, georgette crepe, printed chiffon voile, crepe de chine, handkerchief linen, dimity, flat silk crepe, crepe satin, cotton-faille crepe and striped silk crepe are interesting suggestions. Pattern in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24 and 26 inches bust. Price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. Our Summer traveling dress is the most popular. Styles for women, the miss and the kiddie, and valuable articles about vacation trips, and what the stout and the short women should wear.
